WHAT IS INTERPERSONAL FLEXIBILITY?

Interpersonal Flexibility is a measure of a person's perceived ability to be adaptable in dealing with others: to meet other's needs and to gain their endorsement. It is the ability to relate to people in such a way that their needs are at least as important as yours.

There are four levels of flexibility that are measured by this instrument. Each level of Flexibility represents a level of endorsement that each observer has given you. Your overall assessed Level of Flexibility is based on the average raw scores from the people you selected to rate you. Yourself – rating has not been included in the calculation of your assessed level of Flexibility.

Flexibility Ranges

Level 4: Broad Endorsement

Level 3: High-Moderate Endorsement

Level 2: Low-Moderate Endorsement

Level 1: Limited Endorsement

Results are expressed as Level of Endorsement because the objective is not necessarily to get people to like you. Success in dealing with others requires that you are able to gain their endorsement for your ideas, proposals or actions when it is appropriate to do so.

Limited Endorsement indicates that a person gets endorsement from a limited range of people. They may function well when they are with people who share the same values, beliefs, and principles.

Broad Endorsement indicates that a person gets endorsement from a wide range of people regardless of their age, gender, ethnicity, education or level in the organization.

So why do people endorse others? Usually, people endorse others when they perceive them to be:

- Willing to listen
- Willing to meet mutual needs (rather than just their own)
- Adaptable to different people and situations
- Adapt in a way that is appropriate to different situations
- Accepting of differences in others
- Open-minded and negotiable
- Willing to compromise (rather than being stubborn and opinionated)
- Willing to adapt their behavior to relate well to other people

What flexibility is:

The ability to relate to people in such a way that their needs are at least as important as yours.

What flexibility will do for you:

Gain for you the endorsement of other people.

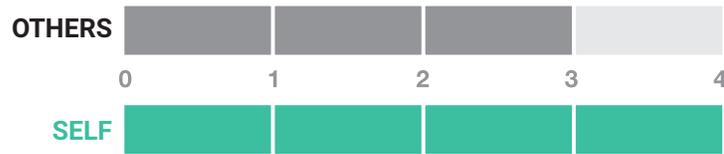

What your flexibility will do for the people you are dealing with:

It will make them feel more comfortable, secure and open to talking with you about their problems.

Flexibility as a growth process:

By increasing your flexibility, you will improve your skills in dealing with other people.

Overall Flexibility

Level 3: High-Moderate Endorsement

Sample, you have been placed at Level 3 and are likely to be seen as cooperative and tolerant of other's feelings and needs. Because of your innate understanding, you can adapt to other people and situations. Further, once you have a flash of perception into an interpersonal problem, you are likely to encourage others in a constructive manner. As a result of this flexibility, others are likely to find you approachable and often sympathetic. You are likely to be perceived as somewhat willing to change your thinking and behavior to adapt to new conditions and situational demands. When working with others, you tend to be willing to make some effort to move into other peoples' worlds of interest, trying to some extent, to meet their needs as well as your own.

Sample, because of this above average interpersonal flexibility, you have been placed at Level 3 as determined by your observers. Although not at the highest level of flexibility you have enough adaptability to have impact with people. Others believe you when they feel you are on their side and see you as competent in that situation. In turn, you are likely to find your role with people and your ability to meet others' needs personally satisfying.

Review the characteristics of high and low flexibility on pages 6 and 7 to get a better understanding of how others may perceive your behavior.

INTERPERSONAL FLEXIBILITY SUB-SCALES

Your total interpersonal flexibility score can be broken down into three sub-scales; Interpersonal Warmth, Interpersonal Understanding, Interpersonal Encouragement. What this means is that your level of flexibility or endorsement from others is very much determined by the degree of warmth, understanding and encouragement others see you using when relating to them. This suggests that as a leader, if you are looking to gain support from your followers for your ideas and vision, you would do well to first build relationships that are based on warmth, understanding and encouragement.

It is useful to see how you were rated on each of these sub-scales as they can provide a deeper insight into which aspects of interpersonal flexibility you are seen to be strong on and those that should be your focus of development.

Interpreting your Interpersonal Flexibility Sub-Scale Scores

As with your total flexibility scores, your flexibility sub-scales scores are presented as one of four levels of endorsement. Your score on each of these sub-scales is based on the combined scores of your observers.

- Level 4: Broad Endorsement
- Level 3: High-Moderate Endorsement
- Level 2: Low-Moderate Endorsement
- Level 1: Limited Endorsement

Interpersonal Warmth

Measures the degree to which people find you approachable and easy to work with.

Level 3: High-Moderate Endorsement

Sample, on the interpersonal warmth scale, you have been placed at Level 3. You are likely to be seen by others as approachable and easy to work with. Your natural style when working with others is seen as approachable and cooperative. You are likely to make considerable effort to accommodate the views of others, offering constructive perspectives when appropriate. When dealing with people who have a different approach or communication style you are likely to be seen as somewhat willing to demonstrate your broad mindedness. Like many people your tolerance can be tested, however you are likely to be seen as demonstrating some willingness to be seen as tolerant. Although your level of interpersonal warmth is not at the highest level, others are still likely to find you comfortable to work with and easy to approach.

Interpersonal Understanding

Measures your ability to put people at ease and engage with them in such a way as to build mutual understanding.

Level 2: Low-Moderate Endorsement

Sample, on the interpersonal scale you have been placed at Level 2. You are likely to be seen as somewhat willing to listen to and understand the views of others. However, others may see you as being more interested in pushing your ideas and views ahead of others. As such people may question whether you appreciate them and whether or not you are really interested in truly understanding their point of view. Consequently, some people might find their interaction with you as somewhat unsatisfying.

Interpersonal Encouragement

Measures the degree to which people find you free with praise and encouragement.

Level 3: High-Moderate Endorsement

Sample, on the interpersonal encouragement scale you have been placed at Level 3. You are likely to be seen by others as somewhat willing to provide encouragement and praise to those you work with. You are likely to recognize the importance of giving praise when it is due, encouraging others in need and providing helpful advice when required. As such people are likely to see you as somewhat flexible, attempting to balance your needs with the needs of others.

Some of the observable characteristics of HIGH FLEXIBILITY:

Openness: Is willing to listen to alternative views and to changing their mind in the face of new evidence.

Need Satisfaction: Focus on satisfying mutual need, looks for win/win solutions, not win/lose. Flexibility means helping others succeed too.

Adaptability: Adapts their behavior to be appropriate and effective in different situations and in dealing with different people. Is willing to experiment.

Social Skills: Has well-developed social skills, able to relate comfortably with people who are different. Their behavior demonstrates a concern for others.

Range of Interests: Has a broad range of interests and is willing to explore new ways of thinking. Shows an interest in what others like to talk about.

Style Adaptability: Flexible people adapt to the styles of the people they are dealing with. They are able to take control as well as let others take control. They can affiliate well with others, and detach themselves to concentrate on the task when required.

Willingness to Compromise: Flexible people are willing to compromise to achieve win/win solutions. This does not mean they will compromise on important principles or lower their standards. A flexible person makes tentative rather than absolute statements.

Dealing with Ambiguity: A flexible person can function well in, or at least is not unduly disturbed by ambiguity. They can tolerate a period of uncertainty while they review conflicting ideas to determine the best course of action.

Advantages of High Flexibility

You are more likely to gain the cooperation and endorsement of others.

As a leader, people are more likely to listen to and support your ideas, since you do the same with them.

People are more likely to want to work (or live) with you.

You will have a wider range of options to choose from.

You may experience less stress as a result of spending less time in a Maintenance Cycle.

Disadvantage of High Flexibility

You may appear to others as being inconsistent and unpredictable at times.

You may be seen by some as too easily persuaded and/or influenced.

You may find that others do not take you seriously when you say "no".

Advantages of Low Flexibility

You are likely to come across as very consistent and predictable, your communication tends to be quite clear.

People will know exactly where you stand and where they stand with you. You will come across as having clear principles.

You may well save time in working with others, in the short term.

Disadvantage of Low Flexibility

People are less likely to want to work (or live) with you.

Some may actually go out of their way to get away from you.

You may be perceived as lacking trust-building ability due to a tendency to not adapt your behavioral style.

You are likely to gain less cooperation and endorsement from others.

You will use up energy much faster because of the tension being experienced.

You will have a limited range of options to choose from.

Some of the observable characteristics of LOW FLEXIBILITY:

Openness: Narrow-minded, tends to quickly reject new ideas contributed by others.

Need Satisfaction: Focus on satisfying their own needs first. The fear is that they will miss out if they don't look after themselves first.

Adaptability: Stays with what they feel comfortable doing, expects others to adapt to their way of doing things.

Social Skills: Has limited social skills. Relates well to people like themselves or who share their own values and opinions, but has difficulty dealing with people who are different.

Range of Interests: Has a narrow range of interests and tends to change the subject if the conversation moves in a direction that does not interest them.

Style Adaptability: People with low flexibility rarely move out of the comfort zone of their own behavioral style. They tend to avoid dealing with people who are different because they don't understand them and it takes too much effort to deal with them.

Willingness to Compromise: Inflexible people tend to be unwilling to compromise, believing that their views and opinions are right. They often see compromise as a weakness and believe that their lack of flexibility demonstrates their strength of character.

Dealing with Ambiguity: Less flexible people are more comfortable with things being black or white, no shades of gray. They tend to have fixed beliefs about the way the world is and reject ideas that don't fit with their perception.

TRUST IS THE FOUNDATION OF ALL RELATIONSHIPS

Relationships are formed as trust develops. When trust diminishes, relationships become more distant, often leading to conflict. As stated in the Interpersonal Flexibility section of this report, success in dealing with others requires that you are able to gain their endorsement for your ideas, proposals or actions when it is appropriate to do so. For you to gain this endorsement from others, people need to know they can trust you. Building Trust is the foundation of all interpersonal skills – without that skill, other interpersonal skills will be meaningless.

Understanding the Trust Model

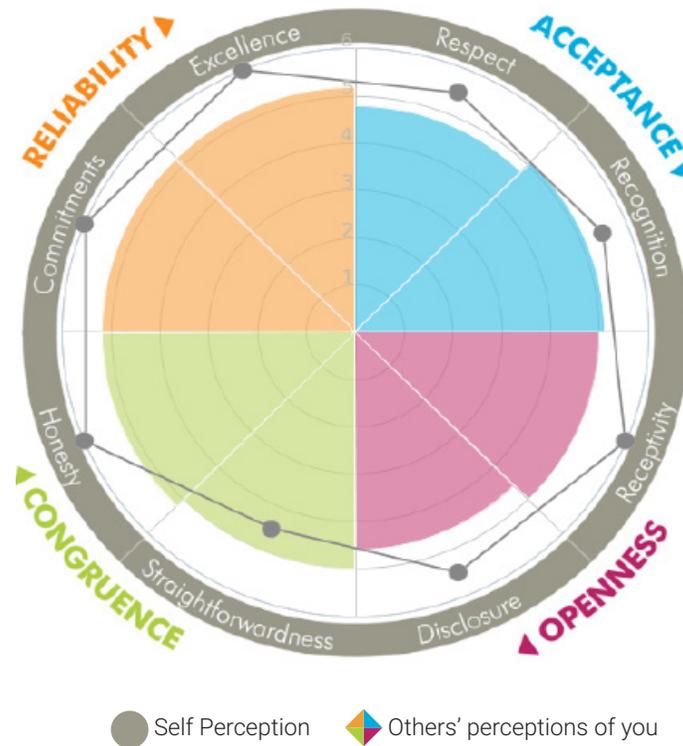

The 16 items used in this section of the Flexibility and Trust Survey were originally designed to measure trust building ability as perceived by others. Factor analysis of the data has shown that the set of 16 items unequivocally reflect two underlying subscales, Communication and Consistency. All eight Acceptance and Openness items measure Communication, and all eight Congruence and Reliability items measure Consistency. For a breakdown, see the table below.

The Elements of Trust™

There are four “elements” of trust that must be present for trust to develop and be sustained. Each “element” is supported by two values. That is, when people believe in the “values that build trust” they will behave in trust building ways. The trust subscales, elements and their supporting values are:

Subscale	Behaviors	Supporting Values
Communication	Acceptance	Respect and Recognition
	Openness	Receptivity and Disclosure
Consistency	Congruence	Straightforwardness and Honesty
	Reliability	Keeps Commitments and Seeks Excellence

VALUES THAT BUILD TRUST SCORES

How to Read and Interpret Your Graph

The graph above shows a comparison between your self-perception and how others perceive your trust building behavior on each of the Values that Build Trust. The graph on this page gives you an overall picture of the comparison and the graphics on the following pages show your actual scores on a six point scale.

When looking at the scores for each of the items measuring the eight Values that Build Trust it may be helpful to ask yourself the following questions:

1. What does this tell me about my strengths and weaknesses in building trust with others?
2. Where are the biggest gaps between my self-perception and the perception of others?
3. What is it I need to START, STOP and CONTINUE doing in order to improve my trustworthiness with others?

Acceptance

All people want to be accepted and respected for who they are, not judged, criticized or made to feel inferior. When others know you accept them for who they are, that whatever they say or do is not going to affect how you feel about them as a person, they can focus on being the best they can be. Acceptance eliminates the fear people have about speaking up, about being open and telling the truth. The starting point for increasing acceptance is to embrace the values of respect and recognition.

If you want someone to trust you, you need to respect them and let them know through appropriate, genuine recognition.

Openness

People trust and respect you more for being open, even if the news is bad. No one likes to operate in the dark. Team members want and, in most cases, need to know how they are performing and appreciate feedback. How open are you with the members of your team? Do you encourage them to share their ideas, feelings, concerns? Openness engages people; they want to know more about what is going on. When openness is high people are more interested in their work and how well the organization is doing. And remember, openness is a two-way street.

To increase openness, embrace the values of receptivity and disclosure. Be receptive to what others have to say, invite feedback and encourage team members to disclose what is on their minds and share their ideas on how results can be improved.

Congruence

Straightforwardness

Honesty

Congruence means the same as – what you say is the same as what you really mean, being straightforward. When you are not straightforward, other people tend to pick up on it. They see it in your body language, your facial expressions, or in the inconsistency in the tone of your voice.

Congruence is also about walking the talk or practicing what you preach. It is about principles, being honest and ethical. It is through your congruent behavior that others learn about your honesty and integrity.

To increase congruence, embrace the values of honesty and straightforwardness. It isn't easy to deliver bad news or say something that won't be popular, but in the long run, people will trust you more when they know they can count on you to tell it how it is.

Reliability

Keeps Commitments

Seeks Excellence

No one wants to work with someone who is unreliable. You know from experience that it is hard to have confidence in people who make promises they do not keep, or who regularly fail to meet their deadlines. It is vital to your success that you can rely on your team members to deliver the results you need from them and in turn, that your team members can expect the same of you.

To increase reliability, embrace the values of keeps commitments and seeks excellence. Don't make promises you're not sure you can keep and when you say you'll do something, do it to the best of your ability.

OVERALL LEVEL OF TRUST BUILDING SKILLS

Your total Values that Build Trust score can be combined to give you an overall trust building skills score. This score, depicted in the graph above, is a comparison of your overall observer's average score and your overall self-score.

Your overall self-rating score was: 90

Your overall average observer's score was: 80

When your observer's score was compared to our normed sample you were placed at: 2.

The levels and score range are:

Level 1: 16 – 67

Level 2: 68 – 80

Level 3: 81 – 90

Level 4: 91 – 96

This information is further broken down into two subscales of trust; Communication and Consistency. This means that your overall level of trust building skills is fundamentally determined by how well you practice communication and consistency with others.

To build trust, you need to be consistent and communicate openly. Intégro's research shows that some people are much stronger on consistency than communication, whilst others are very effective at communication, but struggle with consistency.

You may personally believe that consistency is more important than communication when building trust, or vice versa. Remember, the person you want to trust you may be the opposite. Both consistency and communication are necessary to build and sustain trust.

A breakdown of the communication and consistency subscales can be found on the following pages.

Building Trust Starts with Acceptance

In the work environment, reliability is usually the most important element of trust. You rely on others in your organization to do their job well. Your company's customers rely on your company to deliver products and services of value, that do what you say they'll do. However, the starting point in building trust with others is not reliability, it is acceptance. When we express our acceptance of others through respect and appropriate recognition, we are letting them know that we value them for who they are.

When people sense that we accept them and that they in turn accept us, our relationships are more likely to be characterized by a high degree of openness. Increased openness creates a higher level of receptivity to feedback and people are more comfortable disclosing their thoughts and feelings. Why? Because they know that they are accepted and it is safe to do so.

In an environment where there is increased openness, people are more comfortable being congruent with each other, facing up to difficult conversations through straightforwardness and honesty. When problems and issues can be confronted and dealt with in a constructive manner and expectations clarified, a strong sense of personal responsibility towards each other develops within teams.

As trust is strengthened through congruence people come to realize that others rely on them to keep their commitments and to do so with excellence. When we know we can rely on someone, it builds our respect, recognition and acceptance of them and so trust continues to build and grow.
